night, with thin, driven rain licking the maste and funnel, the houses and bridge with a soft, dull patter. Falling here in halo of steam; there, hissing on the ho fiddleys; here cold on the tanned faces of the watch but everywhere pattering with the voice of hurled shot.

And through it, springing buoyantly as a steeplecheser, shaking spray clouds from her head, a mailship, scintillating at the bowe, flery all down her throbbing sides with a brush of fire beads bissing in her wake, her signal-lamps blazing, driving Al, ABC 5th Edition, Western Union over an arm of the vast sea we term the Channel-a sea turbulent, profound, and now invisible. A glance over the bridgescreen revealed blackness, the blackness of a pit; empty, void, slashed with rain-yet out there scores of vessels moved. "ALL'S WELL."

Two bells ! Somewhere in the shadows a voice carolled, "Lights bright, and all's well," and retired again to brood upon the fact. The sound rolled down the decks and, as though in answer, or refutation, cynically inserted, there came a stifling and acrid smell-smoke. The smoke of an unseen steamer pushing through a balo of it, and like a sullen and weary denizen of the Shinnew. Namazuta and Kami- siums advertising his presence by the smell of vile tobacco. The watch stared. The man in the "nest" sniffed, but the gong made ne suggestion and the officers continued their walk with hunched shoulders. It was wet. The rain drove. They saw T. MATSUKI, Manager, Hongkong, nothing.

Yet out there in the spume and mist a steamer slouched with her shoulder to the wall, holding a smashed nose. She recled by unseen, a thing silent and mysterious as a ghost, hiding her paltry equipment, her tired crew, her skinflint owners, the ghastly business from which she scuttled, in a shroud of her own weaving. Smoke enveloped her. Smoke blurred her lighte. 8m e hid her. She was the centre of itthing escaping with her tongue in her cheek, pitifully mauled.

The watch bunched, the nest was silent. Three bells! Again the cry of "All's well. THE MYSTERIOUS LIGHT.

Suddenly he concentrated his gaze on a new distraction. Something out there approached in a helo of blurred light, and 1024 the nest accentuated the fact that he saw with triple gong-stroker. Ahead! he emphasised. On the bridge the officers were already examining it, searching it with their night-

"White," said the chief; "eh, Nichelle?" "White, sir," the junior acknowledged; stern light probably."

"Perhais. . or masthead, or pilotboat, or fishing-boat-or anything. "True; but meanwhile, what is it?"

It was unsteady. It burned sometimes large and sometimes small; sometimes went out, and sometimes appeared like a will-o'-the-wisp floating in space.

The commander when he came up decided it was the Start, a pronouncement which sent his officers to opposite corners of the bridge to chuckle unheard. The Start! It was plain the "old man" had not yet grown accustomed to the darkness, or he dreamed. The great ship regarded this phenomenor there, a light she did not comprehend. And out of the roar of hissing enray and tumbling water onne the commander's colco. "Bland, by there !" and, as the gong pealed, "Half-speed ! Stop !" .He crossed the bridge as the steam broke in a gurgling roar high in the blacknown, Beef alrioin & prime out-Mel Lung Pa ... Ih 20 and approaching the chief officer shouted and shook his head : . "You are right " he maid. " No. . . not Start. It must be a flare, ! ... The steam bellowed upon the words drowning them, and the two men bobbed together like a pair of pigeous in leve-'Right," said one, "Quite so," the other, then, simultaneously, "God! it is a flare See that?" They bowed, and the chief turned away shrugging his shoulders. BOATS AWAY. "Boat's orew there! Bear a hand, my sons! Number two away!" Then down the black side out of sight of craning necks, forty feet through epage alid the small cool le-shell dubbed number two, and departed; punching the seas.

Five minutes, ten minutes-fifteen-the light was no longer-there to see, but in its place gleamed the boat signal.

It came at length under the lee of the mailship, toiling through rollers that rose forming to blot it from sight. But the boat stole onward unawallowed; reached a rope steadied beneath the tackles, and, in obedience to orders, crept rail-high and halted "Seen anything. . . . What have you got?" came from the bridge. They passed what it was on deck, so the doctor leaned over it, making strange movements with its arms. They passed up, too, a lifebuoy bearing the name "s.s. Tomlinson, Bristol," and at the end of a line fast to it, the flare-burnt out.

A young girl had rested in that lifebelta girl with yellow hair which hung limp and wet; unstirred now by the sea, mosning hungrily at the loss it sustained.

The doctor continu d his movements adding to them, barking terse orders. Someone stooped and lifted the head—then softly came a sound, a sigh, perhaps a cry -Mummie 1"-and the eyes opened to search the cabin. Blue eyes-eyes which had looked one moment into the beyond. From high above the wot decks sounded cry of the watch : "Lights bright, and all's well ! "

But the mailship lay uncertain in the rain. Her boats were out. The cry demanded it. She waited for day .- Overseas

CAMPHOR PRODUCTION IN FLORIDA.

The U.S. Government is preparing to raise its own camphor, so that in case of trouble Doves, -- Pan Kan with Japan it will not be cut off from one No. 6. EAST AVENUE, Kowloon, of the ingredients necessary in the manu. Fowls, Canton,-Kai facture of smokeless powder.

Bevorly T. Galloway, chief of the Bureau | Gess,-Ngoi of Plant Industry, has appeared before the House Committee on Agriculture and stated that Japan controlled the camphor output, but he said that it had been demonstrated that camphor could be produced in this country, and that a plantation | Pheasant, -Shan Kal of 3,000 acres was to be set out in Florida. The tree is grown in California successfully, but only for ornament. Galloway said that in Japan the trees are cut down 72 to extract the gum; but the Bureau has learned that it can be extracted from the Snipe, Sa-Choy twige, and the usefulness of the tree is little impaired thereby.

EDUCATIONAL WORK IN HONGKONG.

Ar this season of the year the attention portance. of the people of the Colony is forcibly directed to things educational. Daily the reports of the numerous scholastic establishments, Government and private, denominational and undenominational, are presented for public criticism and an opportunity is afforded of sening what progress has been made during the year, Broadly speaking that the King Edward Hotel to Government progress has been satisfactory. reports all show that the number of children who are taking advantage of that he had been under paid. Mr F. A the educational facilities available in Hongkong is steadily increasing. Also the standard appears to be rising all round. It may be said, without undue Church, Rowloon, and Messts W. O. Sir Matthew December amounted to $1,116.88 and Nathan has let it be unwistakeably known that he attaches the very highest importance to the proper trainling of the young, and he has on prizegiving occasions broken away from the kneeling hassocks, etc. traditional practice of uttering a few worn out platitudes as a matter of duty. not of inclination. His speeches have been full of helpful suggestions and he line not been content to merely eulogise efforts in the right direction but defects have been apparent to him. This has made the respective " heads doubly keen, and there is now in existence a highly beneficial rivalry as to which school will show the best results. Chinese round about Amoy are in greatly excited atate because of the very stringent measures that are to be adopted at Chinese New Year with regard opium. It is felt by the people generally that the Government is really in carnest, and there is a widespread movement to get rid of the habit before the law comes into

One of the results of this is that a native shop in Amoy is reaping great benefits from the sale of certain pills which are chimed to combat the opium smoking habit successfully and the run upon them has been enormous, so much so that branch shops are being opened.

Outside the door of every opium smoker is to be affixed a notice board with the name of the person followed by the Chinese characters for "" Useless Man." The effect of this will be to cause the Chinese to lose face, and they feel this S. A.

This operation took place yesterday, but it was of no avail, he gradually grew weaker and this morning he passed quietly away. In 1875 ed. he joined the firm of Messrs Thorne and Co. of London, and in 1878 he came out to Shanghai and joined the firm of Messrs Maitland and Co., remaining with them until it was turned into a limited liability company in 1891, when he became the senior partner, which position he filled up to the time of his death. For many years he has written on sporting matters in different papers over the name of Daybreak" and as his articles were always amusing, they were looked for and read with avidity. ANOTHER ARMY SCHEME.

LONDON, January 19. Mr Haldane, speaking at Glasgow, said that the King had this week sanctioned an Order constituting a new home Army Corps with a number of small divisions, which would consist of six great division, of three brigades each. There will be four brigades of Cavalry. Artillery will be assigned to these divisions, and surplus batteries wil batteries. Mr Haldane' concluded by declaring his emphatic disbelief in the necessity for compulsory service.

LONDON, January 15. Mr Haldane, speaking at Liverpool, said that, the Army schome represented the complete unanimity of the War Office. The idea was not his own, but was initiated and worked out by the General Staff under General the Hon. Sir N. G. Lyttelton assisted by Major-General Sir Frederick Stopford (?) Douglas Hay, and the Inspector General of Cavalry in India The divisional organisation in India, he considered, was the true pattern for the This, he said, was only the The War Office was at present considering the re-organisation of the Auxiliary Forces, and would be able. Parliament gave them a chance, to offer the Auxiliary Forces something they would welcome, and which would give a great reality and importance to their function. The time was near, he said, when the Auxiliary Forces would rise to their true position, namely, a fighting line of equal importance with the Regulars.

London, January 14. The Army re-organisation scheme of Mr Haldane's is generally approved, but several papers point out that, though it furnishes | team won the championship of the Hongkong an improved framework, it provides neither the men to fill it up on mobilisation, nor the men to supply wastage. The scheme is based upon a large supply of nonregulars; but is silent as to whence and how these are to be obtained.

A War Office memorandum explains that the divisions constituting the Field Army for abroad will each be, approximately, half the strength of an Army Corps, and will consist mainly of serving soldiers and reservists, supplemented by men whose functions do not require continuous training like that of combatants. With a view to the more efficient performance of the Cavalry's duties the brigades will form a Cavalry Division operating under direct orders from the Commander of the Army. Four Mounted Infantry battalions, two regiments of Cavalry, and two batteries of Horse Artillery will form two brigades in advance of the main Army. Mr Stephens was a vory Mark Tapley amongst examiners and found good even in answers that were not correct. The Inspector's report showed that there had been decided progress in history, the subject for he (His Excellency) had presented his special prize owing to its weakness and he would continue to give the prize for the same subject to encourage its study (Applause). There were one or two criticisms in Mr Irving's report that were not altogether favourable. One was that boys had been promoted from the lower classes too quickly and if this was continued it would obviously effect the efficiency in the higher standards. Another was the weakness amongst the boys in composition. It was only natural to expect in a school of this class that English composition would be up to a good standard. Then His Excellency had an original criticism to make from his own observation. He questioned whether the management was right in starting the study of latin in the school. It seemed hardly likely that they could expect to turn out high classical scholars and the students might spend their time studying subjects that would be of more use to them in every day life. It seemed to His Excellency that in England too much time was devoted to this class of study, and that if English boys were to spend their time in other subjects, instead of studying Ceasar's description of Gaul and the tale that Amens poured into the ears of Dido they would be better able to meet trade com-

PROTESTANT MISSIONS IN CHINA.

Beginning of the Invasion.

The Rev. T. W. Pearce lectured at the Union Church Literary Club last evening on "The Beginnings of the Protestant Missionery Mission in China," taking on this occasion the place of the Venerable Archdeacon Bannister, who was unable to fulfil an engagement to lecture.

In his opening remarks Mr Pearce explained that the title of his address was suggested by articles in the local newspapers. Paying a well-deserved tribute to the press of the Colony he said that the Hongkong newspapers should be road as a serious record historically and critically if their value as a factor in the development and advance of the Colony was to be thoroughly appreciated. Thus Ho Kon Tune Scholarship:-R. J studied it would be seen that the Colony owed a large debt so the foresight, sagacity owards missions when its counsels and rated and sometimes their advice was golden and to neglect it would be perlious. Missionary methods were human, and of improvement—probably not less (and not more so) than the methods of our commercial community or great industrial enterprises in this part of the Far East, or even the methods of the officials in this well-governed Colony. No sensible man Hon. Dr J. M. Atkinson, Lt. H. E. will turn a deaf ear to considered cpinions | Stanger-Leathes, I.M.S., Major Stephenon the subject of missionary methods which | son, 3rd. Mid., Lt. Forces that lie in movements of the kind are not to be guaged and measured by merely human standards. Advice given by Gamalill, a doctor of the law. to critics of the earliest missionaries has its present day application: "If this Counsel of this work be of men is will come to nought, but if it be of God ye cannot overthrow it lest haply ye be found able to fight against God." No judgment of foreign missions is estimatory which does not allow place to the Divine inspiration and impulse as well as the merely human method ; and missions have to be viewed in relation .) factors and elements that are independent of these ducting their enterprises. The lecturer His Excellency having presented the then proceeded to illustrate the algulicance of Protestant missions in China to-day. reminding his hearers of the extent and value of their work in these southern provinces. Beginnings of the Protestant Missionaries were with Robert Morrison. who left England exactly one hundred years ago-January 31, 1907. He brought with him a New Testament manuscript which he and a Chinese whom he met with in London had copied from an older doonment in the British Museum, the first thirty pages of the copy being in Morrison's own handwriting-Chinese characters, formed with a native pen by a young men who before coming to China learned, more than a year ago, to write the characters correctly. Dr Pearce proceeded to trace the steps by which Morrison become translator to the Turning to the report His Excellency East India Company in Canton in which Morrison's work in many 'departments was who have come after him during the century of Protestant Missions that is now closing. Plans have been formed to commemorate during the present year the arrival in Chink one hundred years ago, of the first missionary. The Centennial Conference in Shanghal next April will review a century of Missions, and it will; help to keep green the memory of the man who came to this empire in order to translate the Bible and lay the foundation of an enterprise now far-reaching and fraught with significance to the future of China, In Canton it is proposed to erect a Morrison Memorial building to be a common meeting ground for all missions represented in the Province and it is hoped that if the scheme be duly realised friends of Missions resident in Hongkong will have a share in bringing it

TWENTIETH CENTURY IMPRESSIONS.

Encyclopaedic Work on the Colonies.

According to an advertisement appearing upon page 1 of this issue Lloyd's Greater Britain Publishing Co. are engaged upon important and monumental works descriptive of the British Colonies. At present Mr Somerset Playne, manager of the concern, is in Singapore making preparations for the compilation of a work on the Straits Settlements, and about June next activities will be commenced in Hongkong. The series comes out under the pressions, and already three have been issued, viz, Western Australia, Natal, and sugar. Put the cream into a mould till Coylon; the Straits Sottlements comes | 50 fourth and Hongkong fifth.

The press of Great Britain and the Colonies speak in the highest tornes of praise of the work done. Regarding the volume on Natal, the London Daily Telegraph describes it as "a mine of information. Each section is dealt with by an acknowledged expert making the volume of use not only to the student of South African history and politics, but also to the intending emigrant and business man. I is not too much to say that no more suthoritative volume on the colony has ever issued from the press." This is high praise, and since the firm undertaking the work obtain the services of the leading men in write articles on subjects with which are familiar it stands to reason that the result must be uniquely excellent. Most books of this kind are written by one person who dashes hither and thither gathering up odds here and ends there and slapping the whole lot together indiscriminately. The Lloyd's Greater Britain Publishing Co. on the other hand, are concentrating the intellect of the best men obtainable. and have thus justified the Natal Mercury saying regarding the work on Natal "The volume itself, of which we have just received a copy, will deepen that impres-I can pack my grip and get out at any times I sion and elicit admiration of the organisaso she just beeses me around as if I was I tion, skill and ability with which the large project has been achieved, the publishers drawing their information from the most reliable sources. MATTERS FEMININE

Betty's London Letter.

LONDON, December 28. A HATE WASH AND A STARTLING SUGorstion.-That versatile lady known to the world as John Strange Winter, ha invented a hair wash by the sale of which she hopes to make a rapid fortune. She will then devote the remainder of her life to the production of high class literature for the young.

In the meantime her pen is not wholly idle. She has published an article suggesting that as soon as girls attain a marriageable age, they should attend a series of lectures on "those things which a girl should know as soon as she arrives at years of discretion."-I believe myself that if John Strange Winter herself gave a series of such lectures, charging a fee for admission, to her lecture hall, she would make a fortune almost as quickly as she will by the sale of her bair restorer.

THE LATEST CRY IN HATS. - The latest thing in the way of millinery is the fur toque. Its price according to quality varies from ten shillings to thirty pounds and it is worn 'alike by Madam who lives in South Kensington and My Lady whose abode is in Mayfair. The most popular therefore imperfect; they were susceptible between Married and Single. The teams trimming for this kind of head dress is a glistening green bird perched on one side MARRIED :- Francis Maitland, H. R. or a waving paradise plume or a bunch of flowers. Sometimes the crown of the toque is made of tulle, which to be correct, should match the colour of the fur.

Evening Drisses .- I have just had made, for a forthcoming dance, a most charming evening dress. Let me describe it to you. Made of oyster white satin, the skirt hangs in graceful unbroken folds from waist to hem, the slightest auggestion of gathering compatible with the term, setting the satin round the waist. The bodice has the satin material folded from shoulders to waist and the fullness confined on the shoulder by three gathered lines from the limits of which large chiffon sleeves fall over tightly gauged undersleeves. The bodice in front opens to display a simulated underdress of drewn chiffon relieved by tiny lace and velvet bows.

By the way here is a useful hint for you. Never turn an evening dress skirt wrongside out before hanging it up, no matter how delicate a colour it is. Nothing ruins the set of a freck more quickly, which is soon evidenced by the creases that croop here, there, and every where. This is natural enough when one considers that the outside must necessarily be made a little large and looser than the lining, and reversing the usual order of hanging is bound to react in some unpleasant way. If the skirt is a delicate colour make a big enough to cover it—over it, taking care in either case to have this covering hanging from a hook or from a coat hanger instead of dragging on the skirt itself.

THE WEEE'S RECIPES. BARBURY CARES .- A quarter of a pound of butter. Half a pound of moist sugar; One pound of currents. Half an ounce of spice. Cream the butter, chop the peel very fine, mix all the ingredients together and put in a jar until required for use. To make Banbury cakes place some of this mixture between light puff pastry and bake in a quick oven. HARE PIE.—Cut a hare into small pieces, an hour. Line the edges of a pie dish with pastry, put in the pieces of hare and pour over them gravy to which has been added a glass of port. Cover the dish with pastry and bate in a moderate oven.

Mock ICE .- Dissolve one ounce o gelatine in a cupful of milk. Put with it one pint of fresh or tinned fruit which general title of Twentieth Century Im- has been rubbed through a sieve and add some cream (about half a pint) and a little

FRENCH SCIENTIFIC FEAT. Photography of the Voice.

Two Frenchmen, speaking through third, announce that they have discovered how to "photograph the human voice." The discovery is strange and, perhaps, important, and yet the announcement was made quietly in a lecture hall ab the Sorbonne yesterday almost unnoticed except by a few dosen students. MM. Pollak and Viveg are the discoverers, but at the rate of 2 % per annum on the Dally M: Morage, the Serbonne prolessor, who talked about the discovery yesterday, help ed in this much ; that he suggested what; the inventors about "him at. " MM. Pollak. and Virag had already discovered a new system of rapid telegraphy by which it was possible to transmit 40,000 words an hour bus they would probably have stopped there if M. Morage had not auggested to them that their apparatus could be adapted for other uses. And so in three weeks -M. Morage spoke to them only three weeks ago-they have succeeded in what was asked of them.

In their system of telegraphy the words are perforated on strips of paper by an instrument comething like a type-writing machine. The paper is passed through a special transmitter and the perferations determine the intervals between the ourrents. These intervals are recorded in the receives by a small mirror which escillaton Togal, Possiongan, Mammar, Panishah, in accordance with the perforations and Packag, Medan, Penang, Rangoon, Calthe intervals between the currents. These oscillations are noted by an instrument. which photographs on a strip of paper the deflections of a ray of light which the of it. On the photographic print - which is print and negative in ene-the words ave written in a kind of stiff it olvil service" hand, leoking as though it had been printed from a !! process!! block. For photographing the voice of a singer or of an orator, the inventors substituted a microphone for the transmitter. The mirror vibrates just the same, and the words appear photographed on a slip of paper with the letters black and big or small and On fixed Deposits 12 months 4% per ennum finely written, according to the tone and 1932 accent of the speaker. According to M. Morage, the invention will allow a professor of singing to tell rapidly and unerringly how a pupil progresses by making "photographs" of the voice. It is also said that the invention will allow phonographic YOROHAMA SPECIE BANK records to be understood more easily, as it will now be possible to distinguish between instrumental and vocal music on a record. DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

THE SISTER SUPERIOR SAYS THE SISTERS FIND THEM AN EXCELLENT REMEDY FOR ANEMIA (WEAR WATERY BLOOD), AS WELL AS FOR GENERAL WEAKNESS. RHEUMATIC PAINS, AND STOMACH TROUBLES.

the Convent of the Immaculate Conception at Peking, has favoured us with permission to publish the following letter :-

Peking (China), July 25th, 1906. "I, the Sister Superior of the Peking Orphanage, take pleasure in stating that we have found the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People beneficial not only for our girl scholars but also amongst THE SISTERS THEMSELVES & THE OUTSIDE PUBLIC ATTENDING patients, orphans, and school girls are get-Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the remedy we find almost always efficacious.

(Signed) SISTER ELLEN. The Superior of the Orphanage."

The testimony of Sister Superior Ellen, given not merely as an expression of her own experience but also on behalf of the Sisters under her at Peking, and with the express sanction of the Rev. Mother Superior of the Order of the Sisters of Charity at Shanghai, forms one of the strongest testimonials ever published regarding the merits of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale Pecple, for it proves beyond doubt the unrivalled excellence of these Pills as a medicine for men, women and children, and their value as a remedy for family uso in every home. The question is often asked, "How is it that this one medicine can cure so many different ailments?" The answer is simple; it is that most ill-health is primarily caused by impure weak blood and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the great-Blood medicine known to medical soience. They strengthen and at the same time purify the blood, they enrich the blood, they make new blood, and where good, rich, strong blood is sickness and disease can no longer exist. The testimony of thousands of grateful cured sufferers proves these Pills to be the remedy for Ansemia or weak watery blood, Liver Complaint, Indigestion, Headaches, Pains in the Back, Nervousness, Debility, Early Decay, Paralysis, Beri-beri, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Malaria, and the after effects of Fevers, Dysentery and Chills. To ladies they are of especial value at the trying times; they are as necessary to the growing girl as to the young mother or matron of middle age. Men broken down by overwork, excesses, or residence in unhealthy climates are speedily restored by their use. Ohtainable at most shops where medicines are sold these Pills can also be had direct from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co.: Singapore, six bottles for $8, or one bottle. for $1,50 post free to any address.

the Convent of the Immaculate Conception is attached.
